MEDIA RELEASE

Expansion at PiR Interims

Due to a significant increase in the demand for highly experienced interim professionals, PiR Interims, the leading provider of interim talent to the life science sector, is set for growth.

Claire Abrams has joined the team in the newly created post of Candidate Relationship Manager. Claire is well known to the life science community in the East of England through her previous role as Membership Manager of ERBI, the not-for-profit organisation for international life science and healthcare companies.

Commenting on the appointment Sally Hope, Director of Interim Services, said: "We are delighted to welcome Claire to PiR Interims as our Candidate Relationship Manager. This is a key role for our growing business and demonstrates PiR Interims' commitment to building long-term partnerships with our candidates and clients. Claire will be in constant dialogue with our interim candidates, keeping up-to-date with their needs and requirements and supporting them in finding their next assignment."

"The business has now reached the point where we need a dedicated resource to manage candidate relationships ensuring that we continue to provide an unparalleled, integrated service to both candidates and clients. Speed of response and quality of candidate is of utmost importance to clients when providing an interim solution and with Claire on-board we will continue to delight clients by offering a truly value added service."

"I'm really looking forward to the challenge ahead," adds Claire. "It's great to really get to know the candidates, to follow their interim careers and help them uncover their next assignment. It's Claire's appointment is the first in a planned series of new hires with PiR Interims planning to expand significantly over the next 12 months.
