MEDIA RELEASE

New Chairman for Cambridge Business Breakfast Club

The Cambridge Business Breakfast Club is pleased to announce that Andrew Webster, Chief Executive of websters, has been appointed their new Chairman.

Andrew's first step as Chairman was to propose a modification to the way the Club events are held to make them even more interesting to attend, especially those people who do not like the purely "networking circuit".

Half the talks will be by outside speakers and the other half will be members of the club talking about something of interest to them. The first of these at today's meeting was from Simon Moffat, Curwen Solicitors, who shared some of his passion for malt whisky. Not only a fascinating subject, but also an innovative way of networking by mixing business and pleasure!

Future meetings will be every other Wednesday starting 7.30am.

Andrew said "At our next meeting, on 17th November, we have a fascinating couple speaking to us about "Harry Potter and the Independent Filmmaker". Sloane U'ren was the Production Director for one of the famous Harry Potter films and has been involved in film making since acting as a child. Together with her partner, musician Ant Neely they decided to make their own independent films and will be based in Cambridge. They will discuss how they have raising monies and shot their first film. In addition to the presentation, delegates will get a great breakfast at Churchill College and an opportunity to meet other business people. The price is only £12.50 and interested parties can book online at www.cambridgebbc.co.uk.

Andrew added "Networking is important for any small or medium sized business. As a business owner you need to build your reputation, let people know what you do and why they should work with you. The Cambridge Breakfast Club provides a forum for networking before the normal days work begins. I recommend it to any business which wants more clients. After today's good turn-out, we suggest you "book early to avoid disappointment" for our event on the 17th November."
